

MARCHING TOWARDS THE LIGHT

*Someone asked what learning comes out of today's college,
Or does that education breed a lack of knowledge?*

*Someone asked are fraternities even necessary,
When the only word they produce is probationary?*

*Well perhaps some schools are not awakening brains,
And other fraternities may be forsaking their name,
But as long as Sandra Bland can get snuffed out at night,
You will see the Men of Alpha marching towards the light.*

*They say where's the unity in this beloved frat?
College Brothers say Alumni Chapters don't attract.
Alumni chapters say Undergrads will not stop with the haze;
Cause older Bruhs won't respect you if you weren't properly made.*

*Yes it is true; Brilliant people can sometimes be divided.
When speaking to a brick wall, an Alphaman is beside it.
But as long as Black Lives Matter, as long as there's that fight,
The Black and Gold will band together marching towards the light.*

*And here we stand, a century since our birth
To proclaim to all men from this day to the first
That Alpha still stands for Manly Deeds, still stands for Scholarship.
We will love all mankind whether or not they acknowledge it.*

*We're in the communities, educating our people
Whether it's in school, in churches, or in hallways more regal.
Giving the past and the future hope whenever it sees you.
And somewhere, the Jewels smile, knowing Alpha will continue.*

*And years from now, when we have joined them in that next life,
Our children will know their fathers fought for what's right.
They'll know we fought till hell froze then we fought on the ice,
That's why tomorrow, they'll be marching towards the light.*
